About us

Hello

Our work at Pelican Cancer Foundation makes a fundamental difference to patients' cancer journey. Your support and investment will contribute directly to improving survival rates and helping patients to live well, for longer.

Where do your donations go?

Research fellow - colorectal surgical registrar

Every year we recruit a trainee surgeon as our research fellow. They support our ongoing research, validate results and publish our groundbreaking work on bowel cancer.

Hosting multidisciplinary team (MDT) meetings

Our purpose-built MDT room is used by multiple cancer teams to discuss 4,000 patient cases every year. We have a national reputation as experts in this area, and our MDT working has been adopted as a standard across the NHS.

Research - influencing today and tomorrow's cancer pathway

Research is an essential element of our work and we focus on clinical trials - those that involve people, as they bring the latest treatments and approaches to today's cancer patients. Research is also crucial to the evolution and improvement of tomorrow's cancer treatment.

Education - conferences and national workshops

Thanks to ongoing development and research, the care and treatment for cancer is constantly developing, and continued learning is essential to share the latest advances in treatment, technology and surgical techniques. Our conferences and workshops for multidisciplinary cancer specialists embed best practice and knowledge.

- ✓ We've invested over £2.5 million into groundbreaking research

Talk to us about how we are dedicated to advancing cancer treatment.

"The standard operation for rectal cancer "Total Mesorectal Excision" (TME) has been taught around the world from Basingstoke. Pelican Cancer Foundation was born from the generosity of patients who had been cured in the hospital - it remains one of the most important bowel cancer charities in the UK."

Professor Bill Heald, Pelican Cancer Foundation

"Pelican has had such a huge impact on the world of bowel cancer. It is very humbling to discover that so much good has come from such a small and effective organisation."
